How to search for a specific journal or magazine
1. Visit the library homepage pvd.library.jwu.edu and click on the Journals and Magazines link.

2. Type the title of a journal in the search box.

Search for:
- Articles
- eBooks
- eBooks Citation
- Journals

- Title: "Journal of Business Ethics"
- Search type: Match exact words
- ISSN:

Note: This search will only look for words, not subjects or topics. For example, if you search for the word “business,” all journals and magazines with the word business in the title will be in your results. Other titles, such as Journal of Management, would not be included in your search results. Even though the subject of the journal is related, the title does not contain the keyword “business.”
After you find the journal or magazine title you want, this page will give you information about how to access it. You can see the years of coverage available as well as the database where the journal is indexed.

3. Click on the title of the journal to access it.
From here, you can Search within this publication for an article title or keyword, or you can browse directly to an issue. You can also share a permanent link to the journal.
